An Order Issued in Indiana for His Arrest.

Democrats Discover a Scheme of Wholesale Corruption.

Many Republican Arrests Expected To-Day and To-Morrow.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) INDIANAPOLIS, Nov.5 .- That infamous letter is bearing fruit, and the resort to the methods which that letter outlined seems likely to fill the jails of the State before Election Day is The publication of the circular has put the Democrats on their guard against the corruption which the Republicans were preparing to practise, and the investigation set in progress has resulted in unearthing a wholeale scheme of bribery all over the State. In dealing with the matter the United States authorities decided to begin at the fountain head, and in accordance with that plan a warrant was last night issued for the arrest of the chief alleged conspirator, William Wade Dudley himself. It had been rumored that Dudley was coming to Indiana, and so the warrant was issued now, in order that he may be arrested the moment he sets foot on Hoosier soil. No order can be issued for his removal to this jurisdiction until after the Grand Jury has returned an indictment, and the Federal Grand Jury does not meet until the 13th

Grand Jury does not meet until the 13th inst.

The warrant was sworn out before United States Commissioner Nathan Morris, on the affidavit of Capt. John A. Laug. who has been appointed chief of the election detectives by Supt. Travis, and who has charge of the special United States marshals.

In this affidavit Capt. Laug charges Dudley with conspiracy to bribe voters. If Dudley comes to the State he will be promptly arrested. If he remains in New York, as soon as the Grand Jury returns an indictment he will be arrested there and brought here for trial.

while waiting for Dudley to get within reach of the law, the United States authorities have also been paying attention to his able heutenants here on the ground, and a large number of arrests are expected to-day and to morrow.

large number of arrests are expected to-day and to-morrow.

Evidence sufficient to convict has been secured against divers and sundry Republican corruptionists, and already several of them have been gathered in.

So widespread is the conspiracy that it was necessary last night to keep on a double force in the Marshal's office to make out the warrants and other papers.

The evidence already obtained shows that the "blocks-of-five" plan has been set in motion, and that it was not confined to any particular locality in the State.

From all parts, big towns and little, come reports of attempts at wholesale bribery, and it seems as if the legal machinery of the State would be taxed to prevent the carrying out of the plot.

The foreucon was devoted to arranging the exhibits and no New York babies were ever treated with more loving care and attention than the 450 horses, big and little, plump and lean, agile and graceful, which are assembled at the famous old pavilnon.

President Cornelius Fellowes, Vice-President John G. Heckscher, Treasurer H. H. Hollister, Secretary W. J. Wharton and his assistant, J. T. Hyde, were indefatigable in their efforts to give each exhibitor the choicest place in the building for his or her exhibit.

After to-day, as the decisions of the judges in the various classes are given, a blue rosette on a horse's head will denote that he has taken first prize in his class; a red one will indicate the winner of second prize; a yellow one, a very highly commended.

CUSSION IN MOTT STREET. Chin Sten and Chin Sam Favored the Republican Candidate and Spoke Hight Out the Celestinis Assembled in the "Joint"-You Omape, Loyal to Uncle Sam, Got in Some Work with His Knife-The burning question of the hour as to who will be our next President has extended to Mott street, where the most serious fight of the campaign occurred shortly before 1 o'clock this morning. Yom Omape, a Japanese, twenty-two years old, employed on the United States man-ofwar Atlanta, is under arrest for stabbing the two cousins Chin. One of the Chins is a fantan dealer in Moti street and the other is a laundryman. Chin Sam was in court to appear against the Jap. but his cousin was unable to be present, as he was tossing about on a cot in Chambers Street Hospital suffering from a nasty stab wound in the shoulder.

Chin Sam'is an intelligent youth of about 22 years. He was dressed in dark trousers and the regular blouse of quilted silk. Two very bright and sparkling eyes, and just a little mite of queue was discernible under the soft felt hat which was pulled down over his head.

little mite of queue was diesernible under the soft felt hat which was pulled down over his head.

As he told his story he exhibited his right hand, covered with bandages.

He said he was standing in front of 25 Mott street, talking with his cousin, Chin Mon, when Yom Omape rushed up and drove a knife into Chin Mon's shoulder. Mon yelled "Geomer!" (pronounced Ge-c-mayr), which is the Chinese word for murder, and he, Sam, turned around and went to his cousin's assistance.

Yom struck at his face, but Sam parried the thrust with his right hand and received a deep cut on the middle-finger.

Then the Jap ran through Mott street to Doyer, to Catherine, to East Broadway, and as he reached the corner of Oliver street and New Bowery. Policeman Michael Kehoe spread-eagled his arms and caught the murderous Jap in close embrace. He was hustled off to the Elizabeth street station, where he spent the night.

In court Yom Omape said through his counsel that it was simply a case of mistaken identity, as he had not been in Mott street during the night. Sam, however, positively identified him, and then a certificate from Dr. Ten Eyck was produced.

The doctor said that 'Mr. Chin Mon was confined to his bed with a severe incised wound in the left shoulder." Justice White held the prisoner in $500 bail for examination on Wednesday.

From Chin Sam TEE EVENIKO WORLD Chinese reporter learned that the three were in a 'joint' in Mott street earlier in the evening, when some one started to discuss politic. The Jap said that he was for Cleveland, as he had a good position on the Atlanta.

The Chin cousins, on the contrary, favored Harrison. The discussion became hot and blows were prevented by the interference of the "gals," as Sam put it. About 12.30 the Chinamen left and were standing on Mott street twenty minutes later when they were attacked by Yom.

Chin Mon, who was stabbed ifi the back, is forty-two years old and has been in the country only three years, Chin Sam has been here ten years, and can speak '' United States '' well eno

He can also write a very fair hand, not only in Chinese, but also in English, as can be seen by refarring to out printed below. Sam was allowed to read the reporter's manuscriptal and when he had finished he added:

"The above is true and correct.

How the Indian Treats an Injury-Old Time Methods.

The savage is emphatically the child of nature. He lives close to nature, his only education is gained in

When the Indian receives an injury, he does not seek a cure in mineral poisons, but binds on the simple leaf, administers the herbal tee, and, with nature's aid, comes administers the herbal tee, and, with nature's aid, comes natural recovery.

Our rugged ancestors, who pierced the wilderness, built their uncouth but comfortable Log Cabins and started the clearings in the woods, which in time became the broad, fertile fields of the modern farmer, found in roots and herbs that lay closs at hand nature's potent remecies for all their common animents. It was only in very serious cases they sent for old "saddle-bags" with his physic, which quite as often killed as cured.

Latter day society has wandered too far away from nature, in every way, for its own good. Our grandfathers and grandmothers lived wholesomer, parer, better, healthier, more natural lives than we do. Their minds were not filled with noxious ims, nor their bodies saturated with poisonous drugs.

Is it not time to make a change, to return to the simple vegetable preparations of our grandmothers, which contained the power and potency of nature as remedial agents, and in all the ordinary aliments were efficacious, at least harmiess?

The proprietors of Warner's Log Cabin remedies have thought so, and have put on the market a number of these pure vegetable preparations, made from formulas ascured after patient searching into the annals of the past, so that those who want them need not be without them.

Among these Log Cabin remedies will be found "Log Cabin assesparilia," for the blood; "Log Cabin hope and buchu remedy," a tonic and stometh remedy; "Log Cabin hope and buchu remedy," a tonic and stometh remedy; "Log Cabin hair tonic," for airengthening and renewing the hair; "Log Cabin extract," for both external and integrael application; "Log Cabin liver pille;" "Log Cabin rose cream," an old but effective remedy for catarra, and "Log Cabin plasters." All these remedies are carefully prepared from receipes which were found, after long investigation, to have been those most successfully used by our grandmothers of "ye olden time." They are the simple, vegetable, efficacious remedies of Log Cabin days.

BLOOD PLOWS AFTER A POLITICAL DIS-SHE IS THE PRETTIEST OF THE PRETTY MANAGER ABBEY KEEPING AN EYE ON TRINGS AT IRVINGTON.

> still an American in Beart and Home and Expecting a Good American Welcome-Thinks She Ought to Have Political Fair Young Actress To-Day.

Mary Anderson was the prettiest thing in her mother's pretty house at Irvington this morning. Her night's rest and her own American air had done her good in the way of refreshment after her voyage. She was looking extremely well and spoke with animation, which also showed itself in her face.

"I am glad to get back to America of she said. "I have not forgotten my native land. Some of the papers speak as if I had become an Englishwoman by my residence abroad. I am an American and have no wish to be snything else, and I assure you my welcome home was very agreeable to me."
"But your company is entirely English, isn't n?"

"But your company is entirely English, isn't it?"

"Yes, my company is an English one, but we are used to playing together and that is a decided advantage. It is absurd to make anything out of that."

The large eyes and delicate mouth expressed some little scorn, quite in keeping with the words.

"Do you think you will feel any strangeness in playing to American audiences after so long an absence?"

"Well, hardly a strangeness. I am not unfamiliar with American audiences" (with something of a twinkle in her eye), "and I have not forgotten what they are like. They were very good to me once, and I confess that I expect good treatment from them now."

were very good to me once, and I confess that I expect good treatment from them now."

"Do you feel that you have advanced in your art?"

"An actor must be very good, or very poor, not to have improved somewhat by two years' acting and study. This is especially true about Shakespeare's plays. Some new conception of a character, or at least a larger, more all-round view of it, is brought home to the actor by frequently performing the same rôle. I have certainly learned a great deal. I can say that without vanity," and a bright smile played about the mouth of "Our Mary" at this modest estimate of her own advance.

"Do things seem natural here?"

"Oh, yes! But I feel as if I ought to have some political views and should be in favor of some one or other of the candidates. This is a lively time to strike America in, and especially in New York. Things will have quieted down before I open at Palmer's, next Monday, and people will be able to take an interest in the fictitious personages of the stage. It was rather a novelty and certainly a great surprise to the English to have both Hermione and Perdita played by one person. It was an innovation, and they are not very fond of innovations in London. Here they take things like that more composedly."

"What do you think of the other actresses you have seen—Ristori, Ellen Terry, Mrs. Kendal and Sarah Bernhardt."

"Sarah Bernhardt is unquestionably the greatest actress in the world," Miss Anderson answered without any hesitation. "Mrs.

you have seen—Ristori. Ellen Terry, Mrs. Kendal and Sarah Bernhardt? Terry. Mrs. Kendal and Sarah Bernhardt? Miss Anderson answered without any hesitation. "Mrs. Kendal and her husband, too, are very good in their line of work. Ellen Terry is very charming, and Jane Hading is very pretty."

"I suppose you have trunks full of Worth gowns and splendid toilets?"

"I haven't so many French things. I think Alma Tadema was a good deal better than Worth for my costumes, especially the classic ones. He helped me with his suggestions and arrangements."

"Do you feel any nervousness in regard to your appearance here?"

"Not nervousness," said Miss Anderson.

"Of course, in anything of the kind there is some apprehension. But I do not think my audiences in my own laud are going to treat me less kindly than my London ones did, and they were very appreciative. I am an Amercan actress still." concluded the bright tragedienne, with another significant smile.

Miss Anderson will enjoy herself in her family circle this week. When she begrins her season at Palmer's she will reside in town and take a run out to Irvington as occasion offers. This reunion at Dr. Griffin's pretty country place is a delightful thing for the young actress after her two-and-a-half-years' absence from her native shores.

Miss Anderson is looking well and is full of the most artless gayety and high spirits, The impression of statuesque coldness, which at times has been conveyed by Mary Anderson on the stage, was not borne out by her cheery manner on this occasion. She was dressed in a simple but very becoming gown which fitted her admirably.

It Is Believed the French Actress Will Be Seen as an English-Speaking Star-A A Young Brooklyn Weman with a Thes-

It is said that Henry E. Abbey has one of his eyes upon Mme. Jane Hading as an American star, or in other words that he is anxious for the lady to play here in English. Mr. Abbey, who is wonderfully far-sighted, sees great possibilities in Mme, Hading as an English-speaking star. About every four years there is room in this country for a new feminine attraction, which it is hard to find at home. When Mr. Abbey was approached some time ago with regard to Miss Julia Marlowe, who had just created a very favorable impression by her appearance, in "Ingomar." and who, on the strength of that performance, has to be taken through the country, he remarked in his quiet way: "I have arrived at that stage where I don't make stars. I get em after they are made." Consequently, Mr. Abbey took no interest in the Marlowe. It is said that the season after next, however, Mme. Hading will probably be seen here in English. She will return to Paris before Coquelin, but Mr. Abbey's eye will still be upon her. years there is room in this country for a new

The young Brooklyn woman who has shown such a terrific desire to do stage work, and who was given her first opportunity of appearing in public a couple of days ago, when she rode through Williamsburg in a draped car to advertise Gillette's "She" at the Lee Avenue Academy of Music, is not at all disgusted. The "She" people were in receipt of a letter from her yesterday, in which she said:

"I am in hopes that I may be wanted for another trip around the Eastern District, which, by the way, I enjoyed immensely. I shall be at the theatre Sunday night to see you. I should like to join the company through the season. Let me hear from you. Yours respectfully. Manion Laron."

There is no doubt but that the young lady will be given another opportunity in this city.

Joseph Jefferson has made a long contract

Joseph Jefferson has made a long contract with John Gilbert, and the two popular actors will probably play together in the principal cities. Mr. Jefferson's seasons are generally very short, but he generally pays his supporting company salaries that make the engagement financially equal to one covering a longer period. Next season Jefferson is figuring to appear at the Star Theatre.

The report that William Morris was organizing a company headed by Miss Loie Fuller to appear in South America, was undoubtedly true, but it is not thought that the company will go out.

"Held by the Enemy" has never been accused of horse play propensities. And yet in the third act horses' hoofs have a great and lattersome show.

Miss Maude Harrison, who was greatly boomed for her reappearance with A. M. Palmer's Madison Square Theatre Company in Chicago, in consequence of her contemplated marriage with James Carson, did not seem to awaken much enthusiasm in the hearts of Chicago's giddy society elements, according to the reports brought to the city by the company. In "Our Society," the play in which she appeared, Miss Annie Russel is said to have "ridden away" from the gentle Maude "in a canter."
